'Investing and Online Trading' Stock Market Newsletter - TERMS OF USE

DISCLAIMER AND COPYRIGHT Direct investing in the stock market can result in financial loss. Past performance is no indication of future performance. Results reflect absolute trading stop loss discipline. Case study trades are monitored and managed in real time, and management reports are delivered every week in the newsletter. Except where noted, all case study trades are notional examples using reasonably attainable entry and exit points. Unlike an actual performance record, simulated results do not represent actual trading. Also, since the trades have not actually been executed, the results may have over or under compensated for impact, if any, of certain market factors, such as lack of liquidity. No representation is being made that any account will or is likely to achieve profits or losses similar to those shown. Full trade summaries, with charts, are provided each year.
